3. The Senate Select Committee is looking into Agency involvement with media and church groups. The terms of reference are vague. In responding to requests on the subject, the Agency will hold to its policy regarding not supplying the names of cooperating Americans.

4. The interagency group reviewing the Senate Select Committee's report on assassinations has advised against releasing the report because it contains the names of individuals under cover and because it would be damaging to US foreign relations. The next move is up to the White House.

5. Mr. Blake has said he is sure that Agency health association premiums will not go up as much as Blue Cross premiums.

6. Mr. Proctor reported that the Equal Opportunity recruitment sessions last week went extremely well. Nearly all participants said they had reservations about the sessions, but that their concerns had been entirely dispelled and they were very enthusiastic. Mr. Proctor noted that the coverage in the New York Times had been very favorable.
